

CHILD MINDING AND SOCIAL MEDIA

It's important to know the rules so you don't put children at risk

Don't take photos without clothes or in private areas

Please don't take photos of our children in the bath, shower, bed rooms or swimming pool.

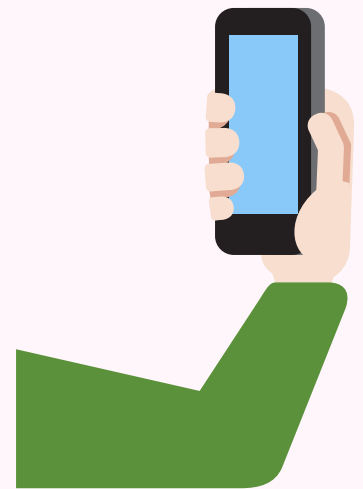

It is absolutely not OK to take photos of children without their clothes on, of any of their private parts or in private areas of our home.

These types of photos could be child exploitation material and you could be charged by the police.

Check before you post

Please make sure you don't post any photos of our children on social media without our consent.

This includes sending private messages to your friends, even if it's just to one person.

Location Settings

If we do allow you to take and/or post photos of our children, please make sure you have turned off location services.

We don't want our child's location to be found on social media.

This can put our children and us at risk.
